9th AStA Indoor-Camp

Lectures are starting in a few days and you still don't have a place to stay in Frankfurt? You have to commute into the city from further away every day? That sucks, especially during orientation days when you need to figure out how everything works and you have a lot going on anyway. At least during this week, we, the AStA (general student committee), want to help you out by offering a place to sleep and to call attention to the unbearable housing politics in Frankfurt.

We invite you to spend the orientation days with us in the student house on the Campus Bockenheim. While staying here, it is easier to get to your orientation events, you can go apartment hunting and we have a board with room or flat offerings. There will also be film showings, alternative lectures, workshops and bar evenings. Even if you already have a place to stay, it will be worthwhile to stop by!

Where: Student house on Campus Bockenheim, Mertonstraße 26, Frankfurt

When: Arrival on the 07.10.2019 from 10am – Departure on the 11.10.2019 around 3pm

Please bring: your sleeping bag, sleeping mat (no tent)

PS: To assure this week will be a pleasant experience for everyone, we expect a respectful and sensitive interaction with each other. There is space for everyone with and without a home, but racism, sexism, antisemitism, homo- or transphobia are NOT tolerated.

So we can plan accordingly, please write an email to the email address below to register:
